Sunshine 96.7: Meet WMTB
Pacifica Network welcomes new affiliate WMTB in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Surely it was enough to be heard on phones, tablets, Roku, Siri, Google, and Alexa? Why bother even having an FM station, when it seems like most people prefer online content?

“And I just said that, all of the numbers indicate that radio still has tremendous reach,” said Station Manager Joe Bourdow. “And that, you know, we needed to be there too. And the reality of it was, as soon as we got the real radio, suddenly we were viewed differently as a real radio station.”

In the last Radio for People meeting, the group discussed their belief that Gigi Sohn is sympathetic to community radio. Here is a quote of hers from Inside Radio.

"Local broadcasters are vital to the lifeblood of every community. Of the various communications platforms, broadcasters alone are responsible for providing local emergency alerts, local news, and local information to their communities of license".

FCC Fining Organizations Over False EAS Alerts

In August, the FCC issued an enforcement advisory on the misuse of the Emergency Alert System. In September, the FCC followed through with this warning by issuing a fine to the program, Young Sheldon, on CBS, for using the EAS as a sound effect for a tornado warning. The proposed fine against CBS was for $272,000.

Creating a Preferred Future

Hosted by Jan Spencer

"Creating A Preferred Future advocates creating a preferred future, where humans live within the boundaries of the natural world and a society where bringing out the best in positive human potential is the goal."

"With a focus on urban land use, economics, permaculture, social uplift and eco restoration, program topics include repurposing suburbia, urban eco villages, allies and assets in the community, pushing back on cars, mindful economics and conversations with pioneers of a preferred future."

Note: There is an hour version and a half our version of this show.
